Children fall in love with books because of the memories created when they snuggle up and read with someone they love. ~ Raising Readers

Reading beautiful living literature has been a blessing in our home. This school year, we read all of Patricia Polacco's books. This sparked many discussions about history, relationships, and geography. We read each story multiple times, and my girls watched me cry while reading more than once. Making reading more of a priority in our home has inspired my 12 year old to start writing her own book. I'm excited to bring Five in a Row and some of our family favorites to REACH Kzoo.

Benefits of 5 in Row & Living Literature

- Mary Pope Osborne

Hi my name is Jaime Rogers. I'm a homeschool mom to four amazing girls whom I've had the privilege of homeschooling for the past 9 years. I'm married to my best friend of 24 years. When I'm not doing laundry or homeschooling I love hanging out with family, listening to worship music or reading a great book. My husband and I made a choice a few years ago to move from a residential neighborhood to the country. Since then I have found that being surrounded by God's amazing creation has led our homeschooling to be more adventurous and exploratory. I hope to share that same wonder and beauty God has placed all around us to encourage and enhance your student's academic exploration in my classroom.
